OCEF Inspection Summary: 2002 – 2004

OCEF inspections are site-visits to OCEF sponsored schools, during which the inspectors examine the status of aid recipients, confirm the proper use of all aid money, and verify that the schools have followed OCEF policies in the prescreening of aid applicants and in the disbursement of aid.

The inspection system was first implemented in 2002. In the past three years, the number of inspected sites has grown rapidly.

In 2002, we inspected 3 sites, a total of 6 schools and ~50 aid recipients.

In 2003, we inspected 14 sites, a total of 25 schools and ~300 aid recipients.

In 2004, until July, we have inspected more than 20 sites with over 40 schools and ~800 students.

We are glad to report that all money went to aid recipients and none of the inspected schools diverted the tuition fund for unauthorized usage. The vast majority of schools have strictly followed OCEF guidelines in the prescreening of students in need and have delivered aid packages in a public fashion according to OCEF requirements. Most coordinators are highly responsible and have dutifully visited the homes of all aid recipients.

Inspections not only allow us monitor the performance of the sponsored sites, but also provide first-hand information on the economic condition of the region and details on the aid recipients and their families. Consequently, inspections have proved tremendously important in our effort to better evaluate tuition aid applications.

In addition, we were able to learn about special cases such as orphaned high schooler and school buildings that need immediate renovation. These cases fall out of the scope of OCEF's regular programs, but can be attended to with specially designated donations. Based on the reports and feedbacks of our inspectors, OCEF has set up special programs for such special cases.

Finally, inspections have given us the opportunity to inspect the consequences of our operations and improve accordingly. The inspectors have raised wonderful suggestions regarding the scope of aid distribution, the right size of aid packages, channels of communication with coordinators, and possible measures to maximize the impact of every dollar.

In summary, inspection is the safeguard against possible malpractice and/or misuse of the good intentions of OCEF and our donors. Thanks to all of our hardworking volunteers, we have built up and continue to improve this wonderful system, so that we can best report to donors, to volunteers, and more than everyone else, to the children in need.
